

In June, 2012, the Secretary of Homeland Security announced that certain people who came to the United States without documents as children and meet several key guidelines may request consideration of deferred action for a period

"This is an opportunity for the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America to be who we already are—an evangelical church with an eye for justice."

Ruben Duran, director for new ministries in the ELCA.

immigration reform and support of the DREAM Act -- legislation that would provide a path for citizenship for undocumented immigrant youth.

The application fee for Deferred Action Is more than many can afford. The application fee is $465, which consists of a $380 fee for the employment authorization application and an $85 fee for fingerprints. Fee waivers are not available. Fee exemptions are available in very limited circumstances.

Facts About Deferred Action

Nearly three-quarters of DACA applicants have lived in the United States for at least ten years and nearly one-third were age five or younger at arrival.

An estimated 1.4 million youth may benefit from Deferred Action.

Experts predict that Deferred Action will spark economic growth, will not harm US born workers, will reduce drop-out rates for immigrant students and will help universities financially. www.immigrationpolicy.org

To qualify, individuals must:

- Have arrived in the United States prior to age 16
- Have continuously resided in the United States without legal status since June 15, 2007
- Be less than age 31 as of June 15, 2012 and at least age 15 at application (unauthorized immigrants under 15 but in removal proceedings are also eligible to apply)
- Be currently enrolled in school, have graduated high school or obtained a general development certificate (GED), or be an honorably discharged veteran
- Have not been convicted of a felony or multiple or serious misdemeanors and not pose a threat to national security or public safety

More than half a million people have applied for DACA through June 2013; 72 percent have been approved, while just 1 percent have been denied. The majority of the remaining applications are still under review.
